

Social Worker - My Profile

Name - LD

Ethnicity - British Caribbean

Fact about you - I once appeared on a TV programme on BBC.

Hello! My name is LD, and I am a senior social worker who is here to support you. My passion is to help make sure young people feel safe, heard, and cared for. I believe that every young person deserves to be listened to and understood, and I am here to listen to your thoughts, worries, and hopes.

Kindness and respect are very important to me, and I believe they should be at the heart of our work together. I will always treat you with kindness and respect, and I hope we can build a relationship where we show that to each other. My goal is to support you in finding solutions and making decisions that feel right for you, and I will always do my best to help you along the way.

Experience:

I have worked with many young people just like you, helping them through tough times and celebrating the good ones too. In my experience, I have worked with children and teenagers who are in care, supporting them to feel secure and connected, whether they are living with foster families, in residential care, or with relatives. I have helped young people create their own plans for their future and supported them to achieve their goals, we can do this together! I'm here to start the journey of change together with you.

Apart from my passion for social work, I enjoy watching movies and TV series. I've previously worked in Cineworld which was very fun as I was able to watch as many movies as I wanted to for free!
